

IHSAA Track & Field

All-Time Best Performances

Revised through 2022 Postseason

This document was revised in 2012 from the previous all-time best list started in 2002, which included converted times from yards to meters. Metric and yardage times are now listed separately for all running events. The yardage times (with no conversion to metric) can be found later in this document, with the best performances alongside those of discontinued track events and field events.

All track performances listed are the times recorded at the performance, regardless of wind conditions. No plus or minus .24 is used since the .24 factor is intended only for seeding and not for record purposes or all-time best consideration.

Our high school state meet went from yards to meters in 1978 when Drake University rebuilt its track to meters. The same year a fully automatic timing system was used for State Meets held at Drake.

Prior to 2012 our all-time metric lists included yardage events with pre-2005 converted metric times, whether hand-held or fully automatic times. The 100-yard dash and 100 meters were always separated due to concerns of what was a fair time conversion between the two. However, after reviewing documentation of different entities relative to converting times, it was decided to report performances on separate metric and yardage all-time best lists. Converting times has changed over the years, thus making the application of converted performances with accuracy very difficult.

Special Note: Times listed in tenths are hand-held and have been rounded up to the nearest tenth; those displayed in hundredths are fully automatic times.

From 2020, the event lists include an individual's single best performance from a season, only once even though he may have additional performances that would fit into the list. A school's best in a relay event that meets the cut-off is listed by their best in a year, since different personnel may have been used. Results will be input during the offseason.

To qualify for these lists from 2020 forward, performances must be from NFHS sanctioned competition.
